More people can now get help paying for their health insurance

Financial help has increased and more people can get it.

The federal government increased financial assistance (subsidies) in 2021 to make health insurance more affordable through the Affordable Care Act (ACA).

Didn't qualify for financial help in the past?

The ACA recently changed and more people qualify for help now, including those who made too much before and those who have access to coverage through a family member's job.

Afraid you missed your chance to sign-up?

Every fall, you can enroll in a health insurance plan for the new year. But if you move, get married, have a baby, or your income is near the federal poverty level and changes frequently, you can sign-up when those and other life changes occur throughout the year.

Unsure where to find help?

There are lots of insurance agents in your community to help you understand your options, apply for financial assistance and enroll. Check your preferred insurance company's website to find one. You can also work with a health navigator.
